"He's under there somewhere," thought Susan gleefully... but how could she know that once again, her heartless parents had failed to get her a pet reindeer.

Nor the longed-for purple tutu.

May you be blessed with wonderful surprises this year... Merry Christmas!

Susan wishes to make it clear that she would have sent her regular Christmas letter, except that she's very busy at work right now and doesn't have the time to write her typical, embarrassingly long note. Nonetheless, her pretentiousness is in full play, as seen by her inexplicable decision to refer to herself in the third person.

And the nieces and nephews are all doing fine, thanks. —Sbh
